The Central Addition
Boise’s LIV District

Research by: Kellie Dugdale, Kailee Bales, Sebrina Mortensen, James Teget

What is it?
The LIV District is a geographic area of focused investment that builds on the existing neighborhood fabric, addresses sustainability and takes a balanced approach to planning.

Our Goal:
Find out how those in the central addition feel about how it is currently. We did this through a combination of resident/visitor/employee surveys asking about ease of mobility and safety. We also took car/bike/pedestrian counts to find out how frequently the Central Addition is currently being used. Later our survey process will be copied to find the success of the remodel.

Who is traveling in the district?

Closing thoughts:
The City of Boise’s Central Addition LIV District will be a vibrant mixed-use neighborhood with a focus on mobility. The finished neighborhood research will hopefully show that the livability will increase, reflected in the satisfaction and the use of alternative transportation types. Currently the area is dominated by SOVs, and those who work in the district like it the least.

We would like to thank the City of Boise for sponsoring our research, along with our lead faculty professor Jeffrey Lyons. Another thank you to Savannah Renslow and the Boise Police Department for all their contributions.

How satisfied are you with the neighborhood?
